

User Stories

Thursday, February 18, 2016 4:01 PM

- Front page welcoming users and describing the site
- Login page that lets a user sign in to or create a password secured profile
- Profile page that the user can set their image in and see their favorite whisky's. They can also create tags here for their whiskys that link back to the whiskys that include the tags, to make it easier for the user to recall which were peety or had a specific taste they liked.
- Main page available after they have created a user profile that lets them select from a drop down different distilleries. When they select one, the data is scrapped and information about the distillery is displayed along with tasting notes for that whisky and any previous tags that users have added. This works by way of every time a whisky is favorited it's data is scrapped and saved to a database so the tags can be associated to the selection. If all users remove the favorite from their collection the entry and associated tags are deleted from the database. In addition a map will show where the distillery is located in Scotland and if there is time yummy recipes will be shown.
- The site will be celtish in design.